Lectures Printed By New MSU Press

Town Hall Series Is First For Revamped Operation

The 1967 M. L. Seidman Memorial Town Hall Lectures went on sale yesterday as the first publication of the newly reorganized Memphis State University Press.

The Press was founded in 1954 under a private charter. Five books were published before it was turned over to MSU last year.

Titled "Financial Policies in Transition," the lectures were edited by Dr. Thomas O. Depperschmidt, professor of economics at MSU. The lecturers were Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier, James J. Saxon and Pierre-Paul Schweitzer.

Copies may be ordered from the University Editor's Office at MSU.

The lecture series was started in 1967 by P. K. Seidman of Memphis to honor his late brother, M. L. Seidman, founder of the national firm, Seidman and Seidman, Certified Public Accountants. The Press plans to publish the second group of Town Hall lectures early next year.
